RW. KITE, farmer and stock-raiser, is a highly esteemed and well-known citizen of Monroe Township, and has been identified with the history of Shelby County since 1872. He was born on the Shenandoah River in Page County, Virginia, February 17, 1831. He is a son of John and Mary (Eppard) Kite, also natives of Page County, Virginia, and of German ancestry. R. W. Kite was reared to the occupation of a farmer, and received the limited educational advantages afforded by the common schools of his youth. Arriving at the age of manhood he was united in marriage August 17, 1852, to Miss Caroline Kite, who was born and reared in Page County, Virginia, and is a daughter of Noah and Isabelle (Pirkey) Kite, also natives of Virginia. Three years after his marriage, in 1855, Mr. Kite was seized with a desire to try his fortunes on the frontier, as Iowa was then called. He emigrated to the west, and settled in Cedar County, Iowa, near Tipton. There he resided until 1872, when he came to Shelby County and bought 120 acres of land which had been broken the year previous. He has built a good story and a half house, and buildings for stock and grain. He has provided for future comfort and enjoyment in planting a grove, and an orchard of five acres. By industry and thrifty management Mr. Kite has made his farm one of the most desirable in the township. He also owns a good farm in Douglas Township, Audubon County. Mr. and Mrs. Kite have had born to them twelve children, ten of whom are living—Lathaniel, Mary Jane, D. M., Benjamin F., Alice Rebecca, George W., Harvey H., Ellen V., N. B. and I. Newton. Stephen D. died at the age of four years, and Oliver in his third year. In political thought and action Mr. Kite is Democratic. He has served as a member of the school board, and is interested in all measures tending to advance the educational standing of the community. His family are numbered among the leading citizens of Monroe Township.
